

The Shin Bet security service has been trying to coerce ill Palestinians to become informants in exchange for medical treatment, according to an 80-page report released recently by the Israel branch of Physicians for Human Rights.

"I would say it's self-explanatory and clear that you shouldn't extort patients," said Miri Weingarten of the group.

More...